

Subjects and notes

do my computer science homework

Many students mistakenly believe that only the exact sciences require obligatory lecture notes.

In fact, this is not the case, since economists, humanities, historians and lawyers will pass exams in the future.

It is important to understand that taking notes is an integral part of the educational process, which is not only a "hint" when answering, but also a kind of test work for the student and the teacher.

Of course, the exact sciences turn more to old notes, however, other specialties do not exclude the help of these notebooks covered with different pastes.

If a student comes to a lecture, then it is obligatory to write a summary! The only exceptions are those couples in which the teacher personally relieves this duty habitual in the student body! Otherwise, the handle should be in action for 1 hour and 20 minutes.

Note: if the teacher sees that the student openly ignores the writing of the abstract, then at first he will not show it, and later (during the exam) he will certainly recall the old offense.

The fact is that some teachers insist on taking notes on new topics in their subjects; moreover, at the end of the semester, their presence is checked in a handwritten version.

If there are no abstracts, then you can not count on a quick admission to the exam, and the final grade will be necessarily reduced, which will negatively affect the future scholarship (will put its receipt into question).

Many students have already paid for their laziness when they rewrote 48 pages of notes per night in order to please the strict teacher in the morning.

But such an approach can be safely called "unsubscribe", because important information on the topic in such a huge amount and in a short time will still not be deposited in the head, but will turn into a "mess" and an unsatisfactory mark for the answer on the exam.

It's best to do everything on time, not at the last minute!

Rules for taking notes

So, if the student decided that from now on the synopsis is his eternal friend and assistant, then he must learn how to compose it correctly.

As mentioned above, the new topic should be dated and color-coded, and the content should not merge into one sheet.

However, there are other important points on which you should definitely focus your attention.

1. In a pair, the teacher speaks a lot and not always on the topic, which is why the student should find in his endless speeches that “ray of light” that “sheds the truth” on a new topic. It is these important thoughts that you need to enter into your synopsis.

2. It is not necessary to write thoughts in a line, it is advisable to choose a quotation style of writing, that is, each new idea on a new line. It is advisable to make a gap between adjacent quotes - for a better perception of information, so to speak.

3. Everything that the teacher writes, draws or depicts on the blackboard with chalk should be outlined (graphically or thesis). He focuses attention on this, which means that such information is especially important for the student!

4. Abbreviations and abbreviations are welcome in the synopsis, and numbers should be written in signs, not in words. This concise approach allows you to record more useful information, and the essence of what is written is still not lost. The main thing is to understand the content later, so it is advisable to draw up an outline in your usual style.

5. Synopsis is not only a continuous text with punctuation marks, it is also the necessary pictures, graphs, formulas, diagrams, diagrams and tables. It is these graphic assistants that significantly reduce the time for writing a new topic, are easy to remember when preparing for the exam, and also always before your eyes.

So there is nothing difficult in writing a synopsis, the main thing is to set a goal and take into account all the wishes of the checking teacher.

For example, some educators have their own individual requirements for taking notes; there is no need to argue and, moreover, to prove your own innocence.

If you take into account all the wishes, then you can count on the teacher's favor when answering the exam and putting the final marks in the record book.
